About me

Writing has always been a passion of mine. Writing was a very needed way of escaping to places unknown from a young age. I remember writing my first “book” in my bedroom as a youngling. My love of poetry and writing just continued to grow through my adolescent, teen, and adult years. I never really shared my stories or poetry with anyone until I was older and more comfortable with rejection.

Expressing my feelings through words is something that no one can ever take from me. Today as a mother of two rambunctious children I find myself writing educational, poetry, and romance works of art. In my educational works, you can always find a hidden message that hopefully will make you not only evaluate yourself but think about others. My romance novels and poems are super-steamy and definitely for a mature audience. No matter the genre that I am writing for I just hope that the world enjoys every moment.
